To Whom it May Concern,

I highly recommend Janet Reed as an equine specialist, including training horses and teaching lessons. Although Janet does not live close enough for me to take regular riding lessons now, I still consider myself one of her students. While I was enrolled at Pierce College working to get my Equine Science degree, I took weekly semi-private riding lessons from Janet. One of mounts at the time was my green broke mustang, so Janet's instruction during this time included training tips as well as information about the fundamentals of riding. I was always impressed with Janet's patience, and her ability to break down every movement into the smallest, most simple steps. I feel that I have become a successful rider and trainer by implementing the techniques she taught me then. I also appreciated the fact that she always treated me with respect and kindness, as many other trainers get into the habit of yelling and belittling their students. I have observed her kindness to animals as well, and she is a judicious leader.

Sincerely,

Julie Schrotenboer
